Business Spotlight: Thorbeckes

Pillar of Wellness in the Twin Cities

When you think of the name Thorbeckes, the name is synonymous with community fitness and wellness in Lewis County. Thorbeckes just celebrated their 40 year anniversary last year and was first started by local Centralian Dale Pullin, who now operates The Northwest Sports Hub.

The first Thorbeckes operated out of an 800 square foot weight lifting facility in Downtown Centralia. In the very first month over 125 memberships were sold to locals looking to strength train. Two years after opening, Thorbeckes Fitness moved to a larger location where fitness classes and more equipment were added. This was home for a decade. Another club was added in Downtown Chehalis in 1993. Just a year later Thorbeckes Parkside Fitness opened, located at the current Borst Park location through a partnership with the City of Centralia.

In 2001 Thorbeckes partnered again with the City of Centralia and the Centralia School District to operate the community pool, which has become a frequented facility of locals, students and out of towners alike. Thorbeckes LifeFit Center in Chehalis opened in 2003 and boasts 56,000 square feet and includes an indoor tennis center, gymnastics center, TAP (Thorbeckes Athletic Performance) Center along with many other amenities.

In 2016 Matt Noren opened Pacific Sports Spa in a leased spot at the Chehalis location. Six months later the opportunity to buy Thorbeckes presented itself, and Matt and his wife Andrea decided to buy the business. Just as the Norens were adjusting to owning Thorbeckes, the challenge of COVID-19 hit. Matt stated, “We are very thankful for the support of our tight-knit community that helped us get through those times.” Thorbeckes closed for two months in the Spring of 2020 but were able to get creative and moved equipment outside for patrons to use. “If we could be open, we were open.” explains Noren. Some renovations were able to be completed during that time when Thorbeckes had to close, which was the bright side.

Thorbeckes is much more than a gym, it’s a wellness center and athletic club for all ages.

Efrain Sanchez has been the General Manager of Thorbeckes since 2018, and was a personal trainer 5 years prior to that. “Thorbeckes is here to serve the community to promote health, wellness and expand on that fitness is ever-lasting, and to provide activities that make fitness fun.” explained Sanchez.

The newest offering at Thorbeckes is a party space featuring 6,000 square feet of area, inflatable slide, rock wall and 20 foot movie screen which they recently started accepting reservations for. And opening this summer is an all new outdoor area between the Centralia middle school and the Centralia Community pool that will feature a gazebo, and water activities.

There are 3 Thorbeckes locations, Chehalis, Centralia and South Bend. Find out more at www.thorbeckes.com.

2023: Putting the Focus on Stronger Families, Stronger Community, and Stronger Washington

By Rep. Peter Abbarno

As we head into a new legislative session and new year, Washington needs to chart a new course to create stronger families, stronger communities, and a stronger Washington.

That new direction must begin by focusing on “kitchen table” issues; the things we talk about with our friends and family around the kitchen table. The increased cost of food, cost to heat your home, and cost of fuel. The lack of childcare.

Rep. Peter Abbarno

The rise in crime, homelessness, and drug addiction. And the quality of public education.

The Governor and legislative majority support a capital gains income tax, wealth tax, payroll tax, and increased taxes and fees on the services and goods that disproportionately impact lower- and middle-income families, and those on fixed incomes, like seniors. Continued tax increases and reckless spending are not solutions.

On affordability, we could reduce the sales tax, which disproportionately hurts lower and fixed-income Washingtonians; provide property tax relief and build more homes so that young families can own a piece of the American dream; expand the working families tax credit to provide for greater economic security; and invest in educational, early learning, and childcare opportunities.

On safety, every one of us in these past few years has either been a victim of a crime or knows someone who has. From property to violent crimes, many communities are not safe or don’t feel safe.

Washington now has the fewest law enforcement personnel per capita. The need for more highly trained officers on the street is essential. Decade-long policies have left Washington last in the nation.

The 2021 anti-police bills had disastrous consequences. While the Legislature addressed some issues, critical work remains – including restoring the ability of law enforcement to pursue suspects in their vehicles; the need to recruit, train, and retain officers; and provide law enforcement the necessary tools to keep us safe.

We can turn our state around by prioritizing victims over criminals; stop normalizing the use and distribution of fentanyl and harmful drugs; preserving the rights of law-abiding citizens to protect themselves, their homes, and businesses; and, ensure the judicial system has the ability – and support - to deliver justice by stopping repeat criminals from terrorizing our neighborhoods.

For years, the governor has supported spending billions on housing programs while housing accessibility and affordability worsened. In fact, Washington has the fewest housing units per household of any state in the country; again last in the nation.

Many young people can’t afford to live where they grew up, and many seniors are struggling to stay in their homes.

There is a better way than the status quo. Let’s roll back burdensome regulations that are preventing new housing. The layering of costs and regulations are eliminating your opportunities to build a home, build stability, and build a future. Let’s invest in infrastructure to create housing. Let’s work with local governments to open new areas to housing and increase density.

The perpetuation of poverty and homelessness in Washington is nothing less than a humanitarian crisis. Too many are living in inhumane, makeshift encampments in public spaces. Too many policies are normalizing the use and circulation of deadly drugs on our streets and in our schools.

Too many children and adults are suffering from untreated mental health challenges.

Let’s stop measuring success by the amount of money spent, but instead by the number of people we help.

Lastly, we need to truly invest in education from early learning to through graduation. I routinely witness the needs as a classroom mentor and volunteer. I see it as a father of two students. Unfortunately, prolonged school closures, initiated by the Governor, had devastating, long-lasting consequences. Those decisions hurt low-income students and students of color disproportionately.

Test scores continue to decline significantly. These setbacks magnified a struggling education system that has already failed many students, limited learning opportunities, and trapped them in a cycle of intergenerational poverty.

Now we should come together and increase our investment in a quality education system that prepares students to flourish in the modern economy; recognizes that every student is unique – finds their passion, cultivate it, and prepares them for a successful career they love.

It’s time to strengthen accountability and recognize parents as necessary and integral partners. Education does not start or finish in the classroom. Education begins and ends in the home. Schools must engage parents as active participants, and we must provide them with resources and real choices.

There are those in power who – year after year – sell us a future based on fear. They would have you believe the status quo is the best we can hope for because, for many, that is all we have known after a decade of the same people promising change that never comes.

Vision to Reality for Centralia College Athletics

The Centralia College Baseball Team enjoyed practicing for the very first time on the brand new MultiSport Athletics Complex on January 17. The complex includes 4 acres of fields for baseball, softball, soccer and features a porous turf allowing rain to flow straight through into a drainage system, allowing for less disruptions from rainy weather.

The Athletic Complex has been planned since 1999, when the college started buying up neighboring lots they would need to own to build the complex. The field is a huge asset to the college as it will provide a home field on campus, boost the Athletic Department, and help in recruitment of athletes. The field is state of the art and there are only a few fields like it for community colleges in Washington state.

In the past teams have played on shared fields in Centralia. The college broke ground on the field in Spring 2022, and is now in use. Finishing touches like lighting, the scoreboard and fencing are being finished currently.

Athletic Director Bob Peters comments, "The Athletic Complex will benefit downtown, because typically our games have been on the other side of town. I think it will draw people into downtown on the weekends. People will come for a game and then filter into downtown to eat and shop, tying in a better connection to the college."

The Multisport complex will see its inaugural Baseball game on February 18. The Centralia College Foundation is raising funds for ancillary equipment still needed for the Athletic Complex, if you would like to donate please contact Christine Fossett at (360) 623-8451 or foundation@centralia.edu.

Bringing Tournaments & Tourism to Chehalis

An aerial photo of the Chehalis Sports Complex.

The Chehalis Sports Complex is located in Recreation Park and is home to the W. F. West Fastpitch team and Chehalis Girls Fastpitch Association. The renovation was made possible by The City of Chehalis, with funding from the State and Federal Grants in partnership with The Chehalis Foundation, many local businesses and service groups. Lilly Wall, Recreation Manager at City of Chehalis comments, "We couldn't have done it without the community support. The city is grateful for the partnership with the Chehalis Foundation, local businesses and the community who helped fund all of the projects at Recreation Park. The renovation of the Gail and Carolyn Shaw Aquatics Center, The Chehalis Sports Complex, and the Penny Playground."

Renovations started in 2019 and were completed in 2020. The fields really started being used in 2021. The field complex was renovated from a dirt field to a state-of-the-art ballfield complex featuring artificial turf infields and grass outfields which will allow more scheduling of youth softball and baseball tournaments in Spring and early Summer. The city also replaced failing irrigation and drainage systems at the park. The complex will also be used for weekend tournaments for Girls' Fastpitch and Boys' Baseball. Upgrading the field complex will allow tournaments to increase in Chehalis, bringing more tourism dollars to our community. In 2022, The Chehalis Sports Complex facilitated 24 tournaments, accommodating 480 teams with approximately 7,200 players and 21,600 spectators. The tournaments brought a minimum of 57,600 people to Chehalis.

As a reminder to the community, if you see vandalism being done, please report it so the park can stay nice for all to use. The Chehalis Sports Complex is located in Recreation Park at 1225 SW Williams Ave in Chehalis.

The Sports Capital of the Northwest

The Northwest Sports Hub is centrally located between Portland and Seattle in the Historic Borst Park in Centralia. Many people may not realize that the Sports Hub is a product of the partnership between Lewis County Public Facility District, City of Centralia, Centralia School District and Northwest Sports Hub LLC, to bring economic revitalization to the region. The Sports Hub boasts over 90,000 square feet of flexible competitive sports space and over 120,000 square feet total and is managed by Managing Directors Dale Pullin and Lyle Overbay.

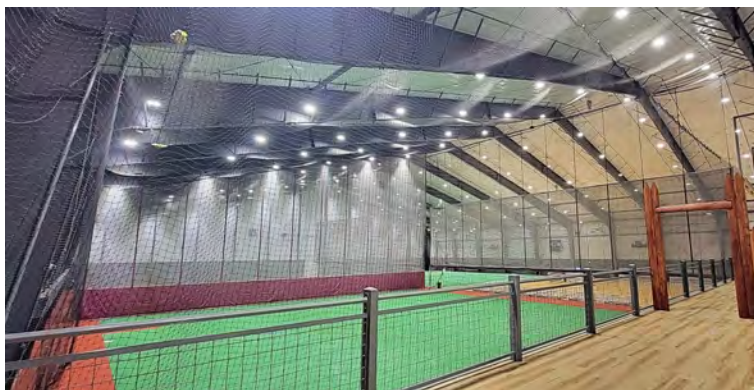

Dale Pullin is the visionary and private investor that helped bring the Northwest Sports Hub to realization working hand in hand with the Twin Cities Sports Commission. The Twin Cities Sports Commission is a sub-committee of the Lewis County Public Facilities District, and works to drive economic growth in Centralia and Chehalis via sports tourism traffic by helping to market and promote events in the region. "The Sports Commission is a self-taxed organization created by hotel businesses to help foster and develop hotel lodging. A promoter uses the Sports Commission to set up the venue and lodging to create the whole experience for visitors," explained Pullin.

Pullin goes on to explain "This really is a state gift to us, to create economic development for the people...when it comes to the business community, whatever we can do to build a conduit out to them is what we want to do." Looking forward The Northwest Sports Hub is looking to create more experiences out in the community including field grandchildren.

Each day of these two dark years, Anne's voice shines through: "When I write I shake off all my cares. But I want to achieve more than that. I want to be useful and bring enjoyment to all people, even those I've never met. I want to go on living even after my death!" This is a new adaptation for a new generation.

Historic Fox Theatre Restorations

Historic Fox Theatre Restorations is excited to have a strong Board of Directors who are working behind the scenes to reassess the full scope of what still needs to be accomplished on the restoration, and more importantly how much each item will cost. As you may imagine, we are in a much different environment than we were three years ago when we completed the comprehensive restoration plans for the theatre. The challenges presented by the pandemic and soaring construction costs led us to this reevaluation of our needs. It is difficult to return to planning when we all just want to be swinging hammers, but this important work will pay off greatly for the project.

With $500,000 in ARPA funding appropriated by the County (Covid-19 relief funds), an upcoming Heritage Grant from the State, progress on Historic Tax Credits, and other funding sources, the theatre project will soon be back on track and restoration work will resume! There is still a lot of work to be done to secure all the needed funding to complete our project, but we are so encouraged with our positive progress.
