Business Spotlight:

The Power Shop: Featured Vendor at the 57th Annual Home & Garden Show

The Power Shop has been selling and servicing power equipment in the Centralia area for more than 65 years. Cedric and Dianne Pruitt have owned and operated the shop since 2005 and their daughter Rebekah Oliver has been running the store for the last decade. The Power Shop's main focus is providing the highest level of service for their customers.

As a featured vendor at the upcoming Chamber Home and Garden show on April 14 and 15, Oliver is excited to be involved again in community events. "Being a part of the Home and Garden Show is a great way for us to get out in front of our community to showcase the full breadth of what we do," comments Oliver. She added that many types of businesses use Outdoor Power Equipment, especially in the county's local Industrial area. There is an ongoing need among municipalities, road crews, fire departments, schools, and churches, for equipment and tools to upkeep operations.

The Power Shop is family owned and operated, with most staff living locally. They carry a wide selection of outdoor power equipment including Cub Cadet, ECHO, Exmark, BCS and more.

Their service department features certified technicians who perform the highest quality service and repair on all sorts of makes and models of power equipment. To discover more visit The Power Shop booths at the Home and Garden Show and watch for an upcoming customer appreciation event at their shop. The Power Shop is located at 3820 Harrison Ave in Centralia and online at powershopcentralia.com.

The Home and Garden

show is the perfect opportunity for businesses to exhibit their products directly to a specific demographic audience within the region.. Connecting one on one with customers that may not know much about local and regional services is a huge part of participating in a Home and Garden Show. Over the past couple of years Home and Garden shows did see a decrease in attendance due to the aftermath of the pandemic. According to Angela White, Executive Officer of the Olympia Master Builders, 2021 brought about half of their usual crowd to their own Home and Garden Show. In contrast, last year's attendance numbers reflected pre-pandemic numbers. The Chamber is presenting its 57th Annual Home and Garden Show at the SouthWest Washington Fairgrounds April 14 & 15 at the Blue Pavilion.

Vendor applications are still being accepted to participate. Contact the Chamber office for more information: Email thechamber@chamberway.com or call 360-748-8885.

Community Priorities: Your Opinions Matter!

By Rep. Peter Abbarno

One of my favorite quotes about surveys is "surveys show that surveys never lie." And while that makes light of surveys, I do believe some surveys have merit and provide insight into our priorities. That is why each year I send out a survey via mail, e-mail, and on my website: RepresentativePeterAbbarno.com.

The latest survey was sent out to the 20th Legislative

Rep. Peter Abbarno

District in late-January and the responses are still coming. To date, here are some of those results from the over 400 responses.

Almost 90% of respondents believe the Legislature should pass legislation that makes it illegal to manufacture, distribute, and sell certain hard drugs.

Over 82% of respondents want the Legislature to use budget surpluses for property tax relief.

A large number of respondents, over 94%, don't think the state is spending their tax dollars wisely, efficiently, and in a way that reflects their values, principles, and priorities.

A ranking of the most important issues "right now" reflects many of my own priorities. They include:

Inflation and affordability of life.

- Crime and feeling safe in my community.
- Property tax relief.
- My child's education.
- Health care and affordability.
- Mental health services.
- Homelessness and housing.
- Restricting access to firearms.
- Finding a job where I want to live.
- Access to broadband internet.
- Protecting the environment.
- Replacing the I-5 Bridge across the Columbia River.

Regarding the long-term care and payroll tax, almost 75% of the respondents support a full repeal, 13% support fixing the program, 2% support no changes, and almost 10% are not sure about the program. For the second year, I introduced House Bill 1011 to repeal the unpopular long-term care payroll tax, a tax that workers will begin paying this summer.

Almost 79% of respondents opposed amending the state taxpayers being obligated to pay off those bonds over years or even decades. Under the Washington State Constitution, all bond votes, including school bond measures, require a 60% majority vote for passage.

Legislators need to continue to hear from their communities about the issues important to them. The ideas and conversations I have with community members help guide policymaking, as well as bill development. Some of the best ideas for legislation come from meetings with my community.

Hardel Mutual Plywood Corporation office and facility

Emmanuel Piliaris, General Manager of Hardel Mutual Plywood Corporation

Plywood Powerhouse: Hardel Mutual Plywood Corporation

One of the great successes of Lewis County is the Hardel Mutual Plywood Corporation (Hardel) that has extensive roots in the local community. It is businesses like this that create economic stability for workers and residents of the county.

Hardel has been providing wholesale plywood to all 50 states for more than 73 years and has been a valued Chamber member for 24-plus years. Hardel boasts a highly diverse product line manufacturing more than 1000 products including standard and custom panels in a multitude of lengths for a variety of applications. Utilizing a 300,000 square foot state of the art facility, the plywood manufacturer produces 23 million square feet (on a 3/8 inch basis) of plywood each month.

Hardel is an employee-owned cooperative with 124 shareholders who work there, so every employee is invested in the success of the company. The mill employs 300 workers who work three shifts around the clock, 365 days a year.

Over the years, the number of employees and shifts have increased, as well as Hardel's extensive portfolio of products offered. The typical plywood manufacturing company offers about 200 products, while Hardel boasts five times that. 20 trucks of plywood leave the facility each day. Sixty-five percent of what they produce stays on the west coast while the remainder ships out all over the United States by truck or rail.

General Manager Emmanuel Piliaris has been managing the operations over 30 years and credits the longevity and success of the company to stable management, low turnover of key labor forces, and good wages and benefits. Hardel's top priority is the preservation of natural resources and the environment. The company has reinvested heavily in the modernization of their operations resulting in the plant meeting or exceeding government requirements. Hardel Mutual Plywood is located at 143 Maurin Road in Chehalis. Find out more at www.hardel.com.

Zooming in on District 20

Once a month the Centralia-Chehalis Chamber offers an opportunity to hear directly from those who represent you about the issues they are working on, challenges they are facing, and help they need from us – the voters.

Senator John Braun along with Representatives Ed Orcutt and Peter Abbarno take time to update, answer questions and hear comments. It's a casual, supportive, and dare I say it... fun way to stay informed about things that actually matter to you, your family, and your business.

Each month now through

April the Chamber offers its members an opportunity to become better acquainted with your state representatives in District 20 and the issues they are working on. There are two more opportunities during this session to enjoy: Thursday, March 23, and April 27 at 7:30 am. There couldn't be an easier and more comfortable way to have a seat at the table and engage with your representatives. Come join us!

Members automatically receive the Zoom details via email. If you are not receiving them or are not a member but want to participate, email director@chamberway.com.
