Inside This Edition: A recap of the recent Legislative Session and the 58th Annual Home & Garden obsession!

Puget Sound Energy looks forward to a clean energy future

By Emily Fitzgerald

Puget Sound Energy is on track to meet all of its 2030 clean energy goals and has goals set for 2045.

“We are very much looking forward to a clean energy future and are working very hard to add more and more clean energy power sources to our portfolio as we move forward to meet the Clean Energy Transformation Act ... and the Climate Commitment Act,” said Kristine Rompa, Puget Sound Energy’s senior local government affairs representative for Thurston and Lewis Counties.

The power provider currently provides electricity and natural gas to about 1.2 million customers in the Puget Sound region.

Coal made up about 23% of Puget Sound Energy’s fuel mix in 2023, but that coal use will end by 2025. Other energy sources in the fuel mix include hydro (27%), natural gas (23%) and wind (16%), as well as minimal amounts of nuclear and solar.

In addition to providing energy to customers in the Lewis County area, Puget Sound Energy provides support to local organizations that are involved in the community.

In 2023, Puget Sound Energy provided support to the Boys and Girls Club of Chehalis, the Forgotten Children’s Fund, Hope Alliance, the Toledo Neighbors Program, Eagles Nest Community Kitchen and the Salvation Army.

Puget Sound Energy is headquartered in Bellevue and employs approximately 3,300 people across the region.

“During our more than 150-year history one thing has remained constant: PSE’s focus on safe, reliable, affordable energy service. And we’re proud of our legacy: a commitment to great customer service and helping to make our communities better places to live and work,” the company stated on its website.

Some of the Good, Bad, and Ugly

By Peter Abbarno

20th District Rep. R-Centralia

The legislative session adjourned, sine die, on March 7th- the constitutional 60-day deadline. Traditionally a “clean-up” session following the longer odd-year sessions there were almost 25% more bills introduced this year than the past short-sessions.

The results included some good, bad, and ugly policies.

The “good” included, the passage of Initiative 2113, restoring police pursuit; Initiative 2081 establishing a parental bill of rights; and Initiative 2111, banning personal state and local income taxes, passed the House and Senate and will become law in June. Over 800,00 Washingtonians signed at least one of the six Initiatives to the Legislature.

Another “good” was the passage of the Capital Budget.

As the ranking member on the House Capital Budget Committee, I had the privilege of serving as the lead Republican House negotiator and help author the capital budget. The $1.33 billion spending plan passed unanimously and invests heavily in K-12 school construction, mental health and substance abuse recovery, facilities, housing, home ownership and early learning facilities.

Some local investments in the 20th Legislative District included $1.950 million for the Boys & Girls Club of Lewis County’s United Learning Center and $206,000 for the pre-design of the Southwest Washington Fair and Equestrian Center. In all, approximately $20 million was invested throughout the 20th district in this year’s capital budget.

Another “good” was our success was including and accelerating $52 million from the Transportation Budget for projects in Lewis County that will help both residential and commercial traffic.

Unfortunately, the session was not all “good”. Sadly, the “bad” included the majority party in both chambers failing to give the other three initiatives any public hearings.

Initiative 2124 would allow people to opt out of the new state-run, long-term-care program.

Initiative 2117 would repeal the Climate Commitment Act, the state’s new carbon tax program.

Initiative 2109 would repeal the state’s new capital gains tax.

These initiatives should have received hearings and a vote of the Legislature. The silver lining is that the voters will decide the fate of these three initiatives because they will appear at the top of your November ballot.

Also, a “bad” was the lack of any broad-base tax relief. Unlike the capital budget process, the operating budget remains highly partisan. The final operating budget appropriates $72 billion, a $2.2 billion increase over current 2023-25 spending. There was nothing in the operating budget to help provide economic security for families and fixed-income neighbors.

There was also some “ugly” policies.

At 2 a.m. on March 5th, House Democrats narrowly passed a bill to phase out natural gas for Puget Sound Energy customers in Washington state by a vote of 50-45, while Washingtonians slept. House Bill 1589 is one of the worst policies to pass the Legislature in recent years. When families are struggling to make ends meet, this will make energy more expensive and less reliable.

Another really “ugly” policy was linking Washington’s Carbon Credit market to the markets in California and Quebec. SB 6058 passed the House and Senate along party lines. The CCA has resulted in an estimated 50 cents/gallon increase to the cost of retail gas in Washington; and California gas prices are even higher. This is a very regressive tax that hurts the community members least able to afford this bad policy.

Transform outdoor spaces with Eli's Paver Patios

By Emily Fitzgerald

The Pacific Northwest is lucky to have relatively mild winters and summers, meaning it's not difficult to have a comfortable time outside year-round.

For those looking to spend that outdoor time in their own backyards, Eli's Paver Patios has you covered.

"There's a lot to do outside, and the outside isn't as uncomfortable as some people make it out to be. There's a few things you can add to your outdoor experience to make it pretty comfortable," said Eli's Paver Patios owner Jimmie Domaschofsky.

Founded in 2015, Eli's Paver Patios installs paver patios, driveways, retaining walls, outdoor kitchens, fireplaces and more to elevate clients' outdoor spaces throughout the Puget Sound.

One of the trends Eli's Paver Patios has seen recently is clients aiming to create "an indoor space, but outside," Domaschofsky said. "We're seeing a lot more covered patios, we're doing a lot more jobs that have a heat source."

Those indoor-like outdoor spaces make it easy for clients to comfortably spend time outside year-round in the Pacific Northwest, where temperatures are often mild but rain is almost always in the forecast.

"I've spent New Year's on my patio before ... as long as it's dry, you get a big fire cranked up and you're good. It's just like sitting in your living room," Domaschofsky said.

One practice that sets Eli's Paver Patios apart from its competitors is that the person who sells the job stays involved in the project until its complete. While some contractors are known to hand the job over to a project manager or a crew lead as soon as the contract is signed, the person who sells the job to the customer remains the customer's main contact until the job is done. "He's the person you're calling whenever you have a question. He's coming by as much as he can to check on the crew and make sure ... the homeowner's getting everything they were promised, and that's really important to us," Domaschofsky said.

Eli's Paver Patios is currently offering a discount to customers who are willing to post pictures of the finished jobs on their own personal social media pages.

For more information on Eli's Paver Patios, visit <https://elispaverpatios.com/> or <https://www.facebook.com/elispaverpatios>. Check out Eli's Pavers in-person at the 58th Annual Lewis County Home & Garden Show April 12 & 13!

58th Annual Home & Garden Show

Aside from a brief break during COVID, the Centralia-Chehalis Chamber has been producing an annual Home Show each year since the mid-1960's. While the name and venue has changed throughout the years the intent has remained the same: To create an event that showcases businesses that offer information about home sales, home repair, improvement, and décor. Plus so much more.

Attendees are encouraged to use the Passport and enter to win prizes by having passport vendors initial their booth.

Saturday the Chamber hosts a Lego home-building contest for kids. 5 - 8-year-olds start at 11 am and 9-12 year olds start at 1 pm. Admission to the Home and Garden Show is $5 for adults and $3 for senior citizens and children under age 12. But the Lego contest is free! But hurry! There are only 16 spots available.

Stihl is the prize sponsor. We thank Olympia Master Builders for donating the contest kits.

BIZZBUZZ

WHAT'S THE BUZZ?

A Wonderful Poem From Blue Skies Drones

In spring's embrace, drones take flight, Awakening landscapes with sheer delight. Through skies they soar, with wings unfurled, Exploring realms, a wondrous world.

Amidst the blooms, they dance and play, Capturing moments in the light of day. With gentle hums, they paint the air, A symphony of technology, beyond compare. They glide o'er fields, and rivers wide, Surveying nature, with eyes open wide. In every blossom, they find a story, In every breeze, a glimpse of glory.

As nature wakes, and life takes flight, Drones in the spring, a magnificent sight. They blend with birdsong, and zephyrs mild, In harmony with nature, like a child.

So let them roam, in this season fair, Witnessing wonders, beyond compare. For in the spring, drones find their wings, And with each flight, a new world springs.

Centralia Downtown Association's Second Block Party of The Year is Here!

Mark your calendars for the Centralia Downtown Association's second Block Party of the year on April 24 from 6:30-8:00pm at British Bites for an Alice in Flowerland tea party to remember! Celebrate the start of Spring in Centralia with fellow community members, mad activities, and yummy treats. This event is a fundraiser for the downtown flower baskets, although as always it is a free, family friendly event! Fern Ridge Floral will be hosting a Bloom Bar, where you can create your own bouquet, Lewis County Blue Zones Activate will be hosting a kids activity, and we will also have a few prizes in store! Light drinks and snacks will be served. Find more information on our website at www.downtowncentralia.org or on our Facebook Page, Centralia Downtown Association.

Experience Chehalis Hosts Annual Earth Day Community Clean-up on April 20

In celebration of Earth Day, Experience Chehalis is organizing their annual Earth Day Community Clean-up on Saturday, April 20 from 10 am – 2 pm. Everyone in the community is invited to join this effort, whether you're a family celebrating Earth Day or a business interested in giving back to the community. This Earth Day clean-up presents a wonderful opportunity for us all to come together and make a tangible difference in Chehalis. Volunteers can check in at the Lewis County Historical Museum and choose from a list of activities including picking up litter throughout Chehalis, beautifying the streets, and contributing to the overall cleanliness of Downtown Chehalis. Experience Chehalis asks volunteers to call 360-345-1738 or email info@experiencechehalis.com to register. Those who register by April 8th will receive a free Experience Chehalis Earth Day t-shirt. On the day of the event, please visit the museum to check in. Participate for an hour or the whole event! Participants are encouraged to bring their own gloves, water bottles, and enthusiasm. Together, we can make a difference! Find more information at experiencechehalis.com/earth-day.

Elevate Learning With The Learning Center!

Imagine with me. You are sitting in your child's classroom, talking with his teacher. She says your son is a good boy, but he's struggling in her classroom. She says she's doing everything she can, but there's not much else she can do. Your son goes to a special reading group. He's not making much progress. Your child's teacher recommends getting an IEP, or holding him back one year in school, but you don't like either of these options. The IEP seems like you are just lowering the bar of expectations, and holding him back sounds like more of the same stuff that's not working. Dyslexia is whispered about, but no one wants to say that's what it is. The school is not equipped to help your son and now it's up to you to find another way to support him. Private tutoring is costly, can take a long time, and there are no guarantees. You think to yourself, "There has to be another option." That is when you call me. I am Lindsay Hodge, and I am a Licensed Davis Program Facilitator. I can help. Call me today, 208-705-3760, or visit my website for more information, <http://the-learning-center.com>.

The Miss Lewis County Scholarship Program Thanks The Community!

The Miss Lewis County Scholarship Program held its annual pageant on March 9th to a sold out Corbet Theatre and for the 1st time in program history 2 contestants earned titles. Katelynn Guenther, a 19-year-old from Chehalis won the title of Miss Lewis County 2024 and Capri O'Neill, a 15-year-old freshman at WF West won the honor of being the 1st ever Miss Lewis County's Teen. Both titleholders are eager to represent our community at the state level in just a few short months and serve throughout Lewis County over the next year. Katelynn's focus is on agriculture literacy, while Capri is advocating for children who need eye care and eyewear. Requests for appearances and speaking engagements can be made through the link at: www.misslewiscounty.com The program board would like to thank their generous sponsors for helping provide over $10,000 dollars in scholarships this year, including businesses like Woods Bee Co. and The Beehive Salon who sponsored the Service to Community scholarships. In addition to cash scholarships, many businesses have supported the titleholders with grants for items needed throughout their year. A complete list of grants and scholarships can also be found on the website.
