For the C/C Chamber of Commerce

Joe Chirhart was recently named the Centralia College Athletics Director and returns as the tournament director for the 3-on-3 Streetball Festival. Chirhart played collegiate basketball for St. Martin's University in Lacey, graduating in 2007. He coached boys basketball at Tenino High School from 2013 to 2022, also serving as the school's athletic director, before joining the Centralia College men's basketball staff as a volunteer assistant in 2022. He became the program's head coach ahead of the 2023 basketball season and was officially named Centralia College's athletic director in May 2024.

"I'm excited to help grow the Centralia College brand," Chirhart said in an interview with The Chronicle in June. "And to also continue to make sure I support coaches and build strong relationships with people in the communities and our kids. I'm super excited."

Chirhart had served as the interim athletic director since Bob Peters, the longest continuously serving athletic director in the state and the namesake for the new Bob Peters Field, officially retired on Tuesday, Oct. 31, 2023. On May 9, his birthday, the interim tag was officially dropped.

This fall marks the start of Chirhart's third school year at Centralia College.

Registration is open for the second annual 3-on-3 Streetball Festival, scheduled for the first weekend in August near downtown Chehalis.

"We're just really excited to be able to run this again," said event director Joe Chirhart, who also directed last year's event.

Ten half-courts will be set up on Northwest Pacific Avenue for teams of four, divided into three divisions based on age, to compete Saturday, Aug. 3 and Sunday, Aug. 4.

The youth division includes boys and girls subdivisions for fourth and fifth graders, middle schoolers and high schoolers. The adult division is broken out into competitive men's and women's subdivisions, and recreational men's, women's and coed subdivisions.

To register a team, visit <http://chamberway.com/> and click on the "Events" tab. Registration fees for adult players are $40 per person, $160 per team. For youth teams, the fee is $140, $35 per player.

The event was purposefully scheduled during the Washington Interscholastic Activities Association's (WIAA) dead period so local high school and college athletes can participate.

School is out. Summer has begun. The days are longer, and the weather is warmer!

On the third Thursday of June and the first day of summer, my law firm, Althausen Rayan Abbarno, hosted the Centralia-Chehalis Chamber of Commerce's 'Business After Hours' event. We served food from our neighbors at O'Blarneys and cookies from our friends at the Pacific Northwest Cookie Company. While eating, drinking, and merrily networking we waved 'hello' and 'goodbye' to our more disciplined community members with the Run-A-Mok running club as they ran through historic downtown Centralia.

These networking

events remind me how interconnected I and my business are with the community. It also reinforces the mantra "Choose Local". This short phrase is much more than lip service. The reality is that we need our small businesses and our historic Main Street USA shops to be successful.

Althausen Rayan Abbarno has been providing legal services through our Centralia office since 1946. I remember joining the law firm in 2010 and hearing the history of our firm and community from my former law partners Ralph Olson and Chuck Althausen. Both Ralph and Chuck knew the importance of building relationships and serving the community.

Ralph taught me that the best way to stay connected with your community was to regularly walk downtown and talk with business owners, customers, and our neighbors. Chuck taught me that the success of our business was not only connected to the success of our clients, but the

Napavine Jr./Senior High School partners with local businesses for student apprenticeships

By Emily Fitzgerald

For the C/C Chamber of Commerce

Napavine Jr./High School is expanding its career and technical education (CTE) options for juniors and seniors via AJAC Advanced Manufacturing Youth Apprenticeships designed to help them develop career-ready skills in advanced manufacturing industries.

Two local businesses, Braun Northwest and Walsh Trucking, have each signed two apprentices to begin working full time through the summer and part time during their senior year of high school, the Napavine School District announced June 13.

The students will each work 2,000 paid hours and take 15 college credits through Bates Technical College before receiving their Journey Level Card, all while graduating from high school on time.

"We were so excited to see the support from County Commissioner Lindsey Pollock, the Economic Alliance, ESD 113, Bob Guenther and others that have championed this program for our businesses and students," Napavine CTE Director David Rutherford said in a news release June 13.

Napavine Jr./Sr. High School hosted a signing celebration Wednesday, June 12 for the four students, which was attended by parents, business leaders, government officials and school officials.

The four students, Patience Dour, Conner Reichert, Bryson Oliver and Jadon Hansen, all juniors at Napavine High School, signed their letters of intent during the ceremony

During a speech at the event, Jadon talked about the opportunities that this program will provide for him and his future career goals. He also spoke about the ability to pave the way for future students to participate in this program.

"This program will provide local companies with training opportunities for their workforce at a younger age while decreasing the restrictions commonly found due the type of work and age of the employee," Rutherford said. "It truly is a win-win for all."

AJAC was launched in 2008 with an investment from Washington State to skill-up the aerospace and advanced manufacturing workforce through registered apprenticeship, according to the program's website. AJAC launched its first pre-apprenticeship program in 2011 and began offering registered apprenticeship programs for high school students in 2017.

Roughly 15 school districts across Washington state are partnering with the program, according to AJAC's website.

Napavine Jr./Sr. High School's career and education program presented a career fair for its own students and students from neighboring districts in November 2023.

For more information on the AJAC Youth Apprenticeship program, visit <https://www.ajactraining.org/programs/youth/>.

Businesses interested in partnering with Napavine School District for future apprenticeship opportunities are encouraged to contact Rutherford at drutherford@napavineschools.org or the Napavine School District at 360-262-3301.

In addition to manufacturing and construction, the Napavine School District's CTE program offers pathways in commercial art, business, culinary arts, digital photography, environmental science, graphic design and healthy living.

Students can also participate in FFA and SkillsUSA competitions.

together a team," Chirhart said.

Chirhart and his Centralia College basketball players will shut down a section of Northwest Pacific Avenue where it intersects with Center Street at 7 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 2 to set up the half-courts for the weekend games. Last year, they were out until 2 a.m. Saturday morning getting everything ready.

For his second year running the 3-on-3 Streetball Festival for the Centralia-Chehalis Chamber of Commerce, Chihart said he is looking forward to growing the event from last year.

"As we continue to run the event, we hope it continues to grow and get better, and bring some fun basketball outside,"

Chirhart said.

The event's primary sponsor Lucky Eagle Casino & Hotel, which also sponsored the event last year.

"We're always looking for more sponsors," Chirhart said, adding that logos are printed on the hoops' backboards. "Those logos get seen," he said.

With the event taking place in downtown Chehalis, organizers hope participants will bring some additional traffic to downtown businesses throughout the weekend.

"We're just trying to bring some excitement to downtown Chehalis," Chirhart said of the event.

For more information, contact the chamber at 360-748-8885 or email director@chamberway.com.

success of our community.

These philosophies have had a tremendous impact on my career and life.

At the June "business after hours" event, my partners Todd Rayan, Jakob McGhie, and Kathryn Eyraud reinforced that to be successful our local businesses need to continue to support each other by eating local, shopping local, and choosing your local service providers. This ensures that our money earned locally will stay local.

Recent statistics evidence that 68% or $68 out of every $100 spent at local businesses remain in the local economy. Shopping local stimulates the community's economy and creates jobs. Choosing locally offers diverse products and a personalized shopping experience.

If you can't see the impact of choosing local, go to any youth soccer, baseball, or fastpitch game. You'll see the teams, players, and the league sponsored and supported by local small businesses. We give back.

Successful communities have diverse and dynamic economic portfolios. We need a strong successful Main Street. We need manufacturing. We need retail. We need sports tourism. All these sectors of the local economy play an essential role in our future success by creating economic opportunities and improving our quality of life.

Thank you for the continued support of our chamber businesses and small businesses across the region. I look forward to networking with you and the next "business after hours".

Summer Deals at the Centralia Outlets

Summer is here! Which means the start of school is not too far off. Avoid the rush of back-to-school shopping and score discounts direct from name brands right now. Shopping at the outlets means getting your name-brand merchandise for less every day of the week.

Shop outdoor apparel and gear at Eddie Bauer and Columbia. Explore deep discounts at Polo Ralph Lauren Clearance, where already discounted items in the store are an additional 40% off. Shop athletic apparel and shoes from the Under Armour Clearance House because everything in the store is $50 and under. Don't forget the big savings you can also score on athletic gear and more at Nike, New Balance, Skechers, Famous Footwear, and Hanes Brands Outlet.

If you want summer swimwear, check out Volcom before the season ends. Ladies, if you are ready to update your workwear, visit Chico's and Lane Bryant to find the wardrobe staples you need and the seasonal trends you want. Don't forget to accessorize with items from Kay Jewelers and Coach.

How a Learning Disability Can be a Gift!

"How can my learning disability be a gift?" This is a question I hear often. Especially since the programs I offer operate under the assumption that conditions like dyslexia and ADHD are actually signs of incredible perceptual talents. But I understand the confusion. If you are struggling due to these conditions, you could be suffering. Let me explain. Dyslexia is legally defined as "a specific learning disorder that is neurological in origin and that is characterized by unexpected difficulties with accurate or fluent word recognition and by poor spelling and decoding abilities that are not consistent with the person's intelligence, motivation, and sensory capabilities." An otherwise intelligent person,
